Academic Project Details

Project Title: Large-Scale Vehicle Detection, Indexing, and Search in Urban Surveillance Videos

Description: We present a novel approach for visual detection and attribute-based search of vehicles in crowded surveillance scenes.

Large-scale processing is addressed along two dimensions:

1) largescale indexing, where hundreds of billions of events need to be archived per month to enable effective search and:

2) learning vehicle detectors with large-scale feature selection, using a feature pool containing millions of feature descriptors. Our method for vehicle detection also explicitly models occlusions and multiple vehicle types (e.g., buses, trucks, SUVs, cars), while requiring very few manual labeling

Found of :

- Identify the root cause of the issues and sort the solution to fix it.
- Analyze and provide objective,actional feedback based on the requirement
- Understand the client needs and create my own template of documentation which will be easy for developers as well as to team manager.
- Serious commitment to meet the deadline with the best quality.
- Rapport building with the client interactions, and give clients the best fit
- Execute test plans/cases, creating test data and reporting results in a Timely, clear and concise manner + updated according to the impact in change.

Achievements

- I had been event cordinator for the college day.
- Conducted Several social awareness programs in college as well as school days.
- I had been the hoster for my final year college day celebration.
- Always raised my hands for humanity not in politics.
- Found highest number of bugs from my first project as QA engineer in my past company(1.3k bugs)

Declaration
